Both Sides.

A man in his carriage was riding along, A gaily dressed wife by his side ; In satin and laces she looked like a queen,

" I wish I was rich and could ride."

And he like a king in his pride. A wood sawyer stood on the street as they passed, The carriage and couple he eyed, And said, as he worked with saw on the log,

The man in the carriage remarked to his wife, " One thing I would give if I could-I would give all my wealth for the strength and the health Of the man who saweth the wood."

A pretty young maid with a bundle of work, Whose face as the morning was fair, Went tripping along with a smile of delight, When humming a love breathing air.

She looked on the carriage-the lady she saw, Arrayed in apparel so fine, And said in a whisper, " I wish from my heart, Those satins and laces were mine."

The lady looked out on the maid with the work, So fair in a calico dress, And said, "I'd relinquish position and wealth, Her beauty and youth to possess."

Thus in this world, whatever our lot, Our minds and our time we enjoy, In longing and sighing for what we have not, Ungrateful for what we enjoy.

We welcome the pleasure for which we have sighed, The heart has a void in it still, Growing deeper and wider the longer we live, That nothing but heaven can fill.

INTERVALS BETWEEN MEALS .- As a general rule, from five to six hours should elapse between meals; but this, of course, must vary according to circumstances and depend upon appetite. Persons in business frequently do themselves much mischief by disregarding its monitions amid the bustle and excitement of trade. After a time, it is true, the appetite subsides, but the necessity of food is not thereby removed. It is no unusual thing for a merchant to breakfast at seven o'clock, or eight, and dine at three or four, without having during all this time eaten anything. This long fasting is injurious, and the subsequent full meals it induces, still more so. In such cases, "snacks" should always be taken.

IMPERIAL STABLES .- Louis Napoleon's stables in the new Louvre are described as something marvelous. Accommodation has been provided for ninety horses, with coach house, a riding school, and every necessay appurtenance. The partitions of the stalls are carved oak, the racks bronze, the mangers marble and the chains steel. The columns are covered with a new kind of stucco, equal to marble for smoothness and polish. In the Cour tle slope, by which the horses go up to the riding PATENT FORCE PUMPS! school, situated on a level with the picture gallery. Coach lace,

A RETORT DIRECT .- A clergyman from a neighboring town and one of his elderly parishioners were walking home from church one icy day last winter, when the old gentleman slipped and fell flat on his back. The minister, looking at him a moment, and being assured that he was not much a Carolina Fall, 1 set Cutting Blocks, with chains and pendants hurt, said to him: "Friend, sinners stand on slippery places." The old gentleman looked up. as if to assure himself of the fact, and said, "I see they do ; but I can't,"-Providence Post.

Capt. W. tells of an amusing occurrence witnessed by him last week on board the Ocean, on her passage down. An oldish, and somewhat. purblind gentleman, pacing up and down the up-per saloon, stopped in front of a large, full length * Extra Hams, Navy Bread, Wafer Bread! mirror, and after gazing at the figure presented for a moment or two, inquired in a very delicate tone, "is-your-name-Brown !" No answer. Question repeated louder: "Is-your-name-Brown!" Question again repeated, still louder: "Is-your-name-Brown!" Still no answer. "Well said the questioner, "you are no gentleman, or very deaf." The saloon was in a roar.

THE vulgar, said Lord Chesterfield, look upon a fine speaker as a supernatural being, and endowed with some peculiar gift of Heaven .- He himself maintained that a good speaker was as much a mechanic as a good shoemaker, and that the two trades were equally to be learned by the same amount of application .- In this there is some degree of exaggeration but he was much nearer the truth than those who are deterred from every attempt to improve, by the erroneous idea that unless the power is intuitive, it can never be acquired.

Pray, my lord," said a gentleman to a rather whimsical judge " what is the distinction between law and equity courts !"

" Very little, in the end," replied his lordship? " they only differ as far as time is concerned. At common law you are done for at once; in equity, you are not so easily disposed of. The one is prussic acid, the other laudanum.'

A schoolmaster who had an intolerable habit of talking to himself when alone, was asked by a neighbor what motive he had in talking to himself. He replied that he had two good and substantial reasons. In the first place he liked to talk to a sensible man, and, in the second place, he liked to hear a sensible man talk.

During the revolutionary war, the Earl of Dartmouth asked an American in London of how many members Congress consisted; the reply was "Why, that is the number of cards in a pack," said his lordship; " pray how many knaves are "Not one" returned the republican, "you will please recollect that the knaves are court cards."

By different nations every day in the week is set apart for public worship. Sunday by Christians, Monday by Greeks, Tuesday by Persians, Wednesday by Assyrians, Thursday by Egyptians, Friday by Turks, and Saturday by Jews.

Father, do ships make nails!" "No, my son-why do you ask !" "Why, because I heard our captain say that the ship had made two tacks within the last half hour.'

F"O, dear!" blubbered an urchin who had just had an application of the birch; "O, my! they tell me that forty rods make a furlong, but I've just found out that one rod makes an acher

A young man, in conversation one evening, chanced to remark: "I am no prophet."

"True," replied a lady present, " no profit to yourself nor any one else." A clergyman who found it impossible to provide for himself and his family out of his very slender income, wrote to a friend thus-"I must give up my living to save my life."

In 1815 the Parisians drank 19,448 hectolitres of beer; in 1858 no less than 300,170 hectolitres disappeared down the same throats. Decidedly Paris is dry.

While glancing over a religious exchange our eyes fell upon this single sentence. "Shrouds have no pockets." We have never seen so startling a rebuke to the " old gentlemanly" sin of avarice.

is obliged to wait till he is dead.

Said an awkward but good-natured gentle-

"When I was at Paris, I had a dancing-master; the man was very civil, and on taking leave of him I offered him any service in London. 'Then,' said the man, bowing, . I should take it as a particular favor if your lordship would never tell any one of whom you learned to dance." "

More NICE THAN WISE .- Mr. Spurgeon, the "sensation" preacher in London, has refused to preach in Surrey Hall, because concerts, although of a sacred character, are given there on Sunday eve-

What's the matter, Julia-you look as sorrowful as a sick lap-dog.' "O, don't perplex me, that's a dear, my grief is too great for utterance. I've had such an awful vision. I actually dreamed that Rosa Smith had got a new silk dress."

"I don't like to play forfeits," said Jemi-ma, "and have all the fellows kissing me-it makes me common property."
"Nothing is common which is dear," meekly responded Bemus.

New Society .- In one of the seaboard cities of the United States they have an orgaization called the "Society of Fools." There is said to be no difficulty in obtaining qualified members.

F A chap on being asked what he would do if he were banished to the woods, said he thought he should split.

Scientific American.

Prospectus. Volume Fourteen begins September 11, 1858.

M ECHANICS, INVENTORS, MANUFACTURERS AND Farmers.—The "Scientific American" has now reached its Fourteenth Year, and will enter upon a New Volume on the 11th September. It is the only weekly publication of the kind now issued in this country, and it has a very extensive circulation in all the States of the Union. It is not, as some might suppose from its title, a dry, abstrose work on technical science; on the contrary, it so deals with the great events going on in the scien-tific, mechanical and industrial worlds, as to please and instruct every one. If the Mechanic or Artigan wishes to know the best nachine in use, or how to make any substance employed in his business-if the Housewife wishes to get a recipe for making a good color, &c.—if the Inventor wishes to know what is going on in the way of improvements—if the Manufacturer wishes to keep posted with the times, and thus to employ the best facilities in his business—if the Man of Leisure or Study wishes to keep himself familiar with the progress made in the chemical laboratory, or in the construction of telegraphs, steamships, railroads, reapers, mowers, and a thousand other machines and applian both of peace and war—all these desiderata can be found in the "Scientific American, and not elsewhere.
